Artists To Give Senior Recital On Piano, Violin

Another interesting musical event at N.N.C. will be the Senior piano recital given by Elaine Carlson, pupil of Alline Swann, and Norma Lee Squires, violinist, pupil of Madame Amalie Birnbaum, Friday, January 17, at 8:15. Miss Carlson's program will include a movement of a sonata from the Classic period: "Sonata, opus 90" by Beethoven.

Her group of solos are from the modern period: "Bear Dance" by Bela Bartok, "Polka" by Shostakovich and "March Slav" by Tschaiakowsky.

For her final number, Miss Carlson will play the first movement of Chopin's "Concerto for piano and orchestra in E minor." The orchestral accompaniment will be taken at the pipe organ by Alline Swann.

The string section of the program will consist of a violin Sonata No. 6 played by Miss Squires and Miss Carlson. Other numbers by Miss Squires will be "Kuia-wiak" by Wienawski, "Meditation" from "Thais" by Massenet.

For her final number, Miss Squires is playing the first movement of the "Ninth Concerto" by DeBeriot.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this program.

Scholarship vs. Activity

Let us look together at the meaning of these two phases of our life at N.N.C.

The value of scholarship is evident to us as we look at our faculty and see some of the highest-ranking former students as teachers now. In Psychology the other day we learned that those who strive for high marks along the scholastic line are better paid throughout life, than those who participate extensively in the social affairs of the college life. It is natural for us to have a desire to live comfortably financially after attending college and preparing for the future, but there is still a desire for friends and some social life.

A certain amount of social activity is essential for a happy and balanced life. Consequently we don't want to neglect the social activities completely. Social activities give us that freedom of speech or poise, when in the presence of strangers. Society includes the very formal banquets and the good old weiner roast. To gain a proper balance in life, we should train ourselves so that we don't feel lost at the banquet and can have a good time at a weiner roast.

At NNCC we have the opportunity to develop along both of these important phases of our lives with a halo of spiritual tendencies.

In order for us to be more useful in the church at home, let us strive for scholastic achievement and perfection, and at the same time be a jolly good fellow. DON'T GET LOP-SIDED ON EITHER SIDE.

Do You Live What You Preach

Christian students must constantly guard against dishonesties that seem minor.

It's high time we checked up on our fruits and got out a spiritual flit gun. It's high time we quit rationalizing and saw our ethics as God sees them, got ashamed, and did something.

How about that book review that you wrote when you hadn't read the book? Of course, the professor didn't ask if you'd read it, but your writing the review was just as much a lie as if you'd sworn on a stack of Bibles that you had. Or maybe you read the first and last chapters and a few in between. Did that make rationalizing easier?

How about that reference book you piled up with your books and walked out of the library with? Certainly you knew that reference books don't circulate, that removing one from the reference room is unethical, dishonest, cheating.

And about that soap and toothpaste you've been borrowing from your roommate? Maybe he wouldn't care if he knew, but it's funny how you dig out your own—from its unhandy corner—if he happens to be around.

How about your special trick of getting a good spot in lines? Of course it may seem pretty cute when you find a friend up at the front and chat until he suggests letting you in in front of him. But the Lord, who sees a sparrow fall, knows whose turn it is and whose ethics are not up to His standards.

How about getting together with the Lord and having a little check-up to be sure that, in your ethics, "Old things are passed away and . . . all things are become new."

Christian Youth and Consistency In Service

by Elwood R. Tame

"And I sought for a man among them, that should make up the hedge, and stand in the gap before me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none." Ezekiel 22:30.

Much has been said and written about Christian stewardship and service but apparently not too much.

We have been granted the privilege of attending a Christian holiness college where the most of us are preparing for definite Christian service. Many for the ministry, both pastoral and evangelistic, others for the mission fields around the world, others are training for positions where they can best be of service to the Kingdom of God. That is our collective goal and may the Lord bless each of us in the achievement of it.

Still with all these potential leaders about us the churches from which we come and the college are suffering from "Gaposis" with no one to fill the place of responsibility. Why are we shying away from responsibility when we feel called to move into Christian work ourselves? "I can't teach a Sunday School class"; "Get someone else"; "I have so much to do now"; "When I get out into the work then I'll get busy." We have all heard excuses such as these and we grow weary of them.

Young people in N.N.C., the awful truth is this that the person who is unwilling to work in the local churches or here on the campus won't want to work any better in the pastorate, won't want to work any better on the mission field. This is the proving ground of our eagerness to see service in the Kingdom. Many of us are falling short of the test. Going to Africa, China, India or anywhere else on the globe will not change your essential nature.

I heard this statement made by a Sunday School Superintendent in a convention recently: "I wouldn't give a nickel of my money to support a person going to the mission field who was unwilling to support and work in the local church." I believe this person right for it would be a waste of money and time to send such an individual.

Let's wake up, young people, and see our obligation to the work of God wherever it is. Let's be consistent in our Christian service. God is looking for a man to fill the gaps today in little places as well as big. Are you willing to supply that man or that woman?

By Fred Fowler

When the service men from the northern part of our country became acquainted with his fellow men from the South, he began to wonder if the Civil War was over. I suppose every Christian veteran can testify to some pretty warm discussions he has been in concerning the problem of race prejudices. Just what does the Christian veterans think about this important problem after having come in contact with so many in the service who are bitter toward the Negro, the Jew, the Japanese, and peoples of other countries?

I think I speak for all Christian veterans when I say that we feel that we have fought and our comrades have died in vain, even as Americans or as white people feel we are superior. Hitler hoodwinked the German people into believing that they were the "mast" race and this is one of the principles we wanted to disprove. We fought against Nazism and won, but won't our victory be in vain if we allow that dreadful "disease" to run rife in our Christian America? The veteran knows that even resentments are changed into hatreds and feels that it's high time we stamped out the "Hypocrisy" in America and established the Democracy for which so many fought and died. When we say "with liberty and justice for all" do we mean the Negro too, or does that just apply to us white folks?

In Abundant Living, E. Stanley Jones brings out the fact that it takes both the white and the black keys on the piano to produce harmony. If we seclude the black we are likely to have discord. The same holds true to humanity. We must all work together if we are to have a just and durable peace. As we go into 1947 I think we can all benefit and help the cause of peace by remembering that Christ died for all (including the Negroes, Jews, etc.) when we apply the Golden Rule.

Press Notes

See Yourself!

The Delphic Oracle of ancient Greece was famous for the saying, "Know Thyself". The Crusader Oracle doesn't expect to be famous but it says, "See Thyself". Did you ever try the mirror exercise? Plenty of times you say, well, try it this way. View yourself as if you had never seen said person before. It will be surprising the new things you will see, in fact, if you are lucky you may see some real potentialities heretofore unnoticed. We can't all be America's best dressed women and men but neither do we need to look like the old lamp lighter.

See Thyself. Have you been in hiding because you are too tall or too short? Come back to the world, for with a bit of the right tailoring you can be just as confident as the next person. Don't be afraid to learn that you aren't a Mrs. Vandebuilt or a Lucius Beebe; that you don't have the face of an angel nor the look of a Vitalis ad. The point is, that you can be just as attractive as the rest if you stop reading into the mirror things that aren't there.

See Thyself. And while you are looking don't forget that you are an individual person with traits all of your own. Use the fact that you are different from your ideal as a definite asset. Don't be one of the crowd; be unusual, because you ARE different from every other person in your world.

Doris Rodman.

How About It?

By Zip

Question: Do you think it would be possible to departmentalize N.N.C. and still retain the present active athletic program with as much interest? If so why?

Answers:

Leta Slemmer, Spokane, Washington, Senior (College)—"Yes, I believe it would be possible to do so and still retain the present program, but it would be a long and difficult process. It would require very great skill in organization and leadership. I do not believe that N.N.C. is large enough yet to warrant such a revolution although I believe the time will come later."

LaMont Lee: Nampa, Idaho, Coach (College)—"I believe the present program at N.N.C. offers the best arrangement possible to maintain a well rounded and active intramural sports program. Our small enrollment will not permit an effective program if the school is departmentalized. I'm from the old school and, from what I've observed of other intramural sports programs, ours is tops at N.N.C."

Peter Burkhardt: Walla Walla, Washington, Freshman (College)—"I think the whole discussion is silly. We have the Athletic-Literary Societies and they are performing their task very effectively. Why squabble over it? There are plenty of other things that are crying for attention."

Lillian Nutt: Billings, Montana, Junior (College)—"I believe that departmentalization would be a very good thing for the music and speech departments, but I do not know enough about the athletics division to say anything about it."

Richard Hoyle: Wenatchee, Washington, Sophomore (College)—"If the societies were disbanded there would be much talent that would not be discovered, as in music, debate and athletics. It would leave out those who like to participate in the activities and leave performance to the majors in their departments."

Columnist's Note:

As I see it, the athletic program could be carried on under a state of departmentalization. Whether it would be as effective is a case in point. As Miss Slemmer suggested, it would be a rather lengthy process of establishment for such a program. On the other hand, as the institution grows it will be come almost imperative. The decision as to when that time will be, rests with the students and administration.

The method of execution for a departmentalized program will demand much consideration. A possible solution might lie in the rejuvenation of "class spirit," which is so evidently lacking here in college. Another possible avenue could be intra-mural teams or sports groups from the various gym classes.

A.S.B. Treasurer

"Once upon a time"—just another one of those little country boys in South Dakota—now a popular member of Who's Who! Yes, Mr. Edgar spent his childhood days, up to the age of seven, near Webster, South Dakota. From there his family moved to another small town in South Dakota, where the remainder of his school days were spent. Upon graduating from high school, Mr. Edgar went to Spokane, Washington, and then to NNC in the fall of 1940.

Three happy semesters were spent here at college before his induction into the army, where he spent four years, which (I presume) were of a less blissful nature. While in the service, Mr. Edgar spent the greatest share of his time in the deep South, at Fort Benning, Georgia. In comparing Idaho and Georgia, Mr. Edgar says, with a significant smile, "I like Idaho much better!" Six months of overseas duty in Japan after the war was over, terminated his service in the Army.

Like many others, they met at NNC. She was a little freshman and he a sophomore. Whether it took four years to convince Charlotte I am unable to say, but it was not until May, 1945, on graduation day, that the happy climax took place.

Returning to the campus of NNC a year ago for the new semester of '46 Mr. Edgar once more resumed an active part in the ever-turning wheel of events of college life. This school year he holds the very responsible and exacting job of Student-Body Treasurer. As a major in mathematics, he is well qualified for such a position, and furthermore, we think he's doing a swell job of it!

Mr. Edgar would like to pay special tribute to Dr. Gardner, one of our former instructors of NNC. He feels that Dr. Gardner as his mathematics teacher, was a special inspiration to his in getting his Math. problems done. (Most of us need more than inspiration when it comes to Math.)

Ervin admits that studies are not his only interest. Photography is a favorite pastime of his, while hunting also holds a warm spot in his heart.

Asked which of his present subjects he most enjoyed, he hesitated and then answered, "Well, I might say it this way. As a subject, I like speech the least, but I feel that it's doing me lots of good."

Personality Slants

by Pauline Hilty

Never let it be said that N.N.C. is minus personality. We didn't say what kind, just never let it be said.

It would seem that the verbal beating Bob Sporleder has been taking over his southern California raptures would have made him a mite subdued but not Bobbie, or did you see the brazen "fire and brimstone" necktie he was waving last week.

The Hadley Hall crew are racking their feeble brains trying to think of a safe, sane cure that will break Edna Gardner of her lugubrious theme song, "It's study hours, girls!"

Noteworthy items of the week are Francie Weber's mellow dark eyes, Erma Hoidal's bashful smile, the breathtaking sweep of Polly Wilde's eyelashes, Rod Smith's impeccably courteous manner, demure, Jacqueline Patton, Glenn Ludlow's coy dimples, Faye Jensen's contagious giggle, and the perpetual angelic expression on Jerry Johnson's visage.

Latest amazing bit of "Wilsonia" is the current rumor that Helen is carrying on quite a torrid correspondence with members of the Sacred Heart.

One of the Crusader's most fervent boosters is Phyllis Fowler, wife of Fred, who is a first string lad of the maple court squad.

Greetings Gates, let's communicate! Let it be known that we, the cheerleaders, wish to thank you for your splendid backing. We were rather disheartened after the first game, but you caught hold in great style, showing that "Old Spirit".

We will not complain too much if you do not yell when our team is winning by a good margin, but PLEASE, PLEASE exert yourself when the team is behind. Just remember the yells are for the team, our team, whose morale we wish to keep up in the tight spots.

Well gang, we expect you out. There will be a skit at the halves, and perhaps Abe and Shorty will give us further lessons in cheerleading.

Are you with us gang? Why, Shore!

The Cheer-Leaders.

The N. N. C. Crusader Basketball team captured a three-game series from the Pasadena Nazarene College Crusaders by the scores of 51-43, 51-43, and 57-54 at Pasadena December 30, 31, and January 2, respectively.

The squad of seven hoopsters, two drivers, and Coach Monty Lee left Nampa the 27th of December. Traveling were Elmore Vail, Bob Lee, John Cramer, Fred Fowler, Bob Kiel, Johnny Loeber, Bob Sporleder and Leon Bruner; driving were Ray Cotner and Bob Arneson.

The first game played in Pasadena College's gigantic new auditorium-gymnasium was a close game all the way, with N.N.C. gaining the lead and keeping it throughout the game for a final score of 51-43. Vail sank the most baskets with 19 points to his credit.

Tuesday the 31st, showed the final tally also 51-43 with N.N.C. ahead at the half. Fowler and Vail fouled out in the third quarter, and Pasadena quickly gained a four-point lead. Bob Kiel, tall N.N.C. forward, saved the game by dropping some beautiful side shots into the hoop, boosting N. N.C. into the winning spot. Cramer, forward, was high with 22 points.

The last game (and the best) was a hard fought battle with Bob Lee doing exceptionally good defensive work holding their tall star center down to a 15 point high. N.N.C. gained a 13 point lead in the third, but couldn't hold it. Cramer with dashing follow-in shots was high man contributing thirty points to the final of 57-54.

The N.N.C. cheering section was filled mostly with cheering alumni, former students, and friends of N.N.C. Betty Harding, former N.N.C. student now attending Pasadena, led the N.N.C. enthusiasts in rousing yells for the team. A capacity crowd was on hand for all three of the games.

Coach La Mont Lee publicly thanked the student body in chapel for making it possible for the Crusaders to make the trip to Pasadena and stated that this is the best team that he has ever had the privilege to be associated with, and considers it a high honor to be its coach.

Coming Up

The N.N.C. Crusaders travel this week-end to play a two game series with Albion State Normal School, January 17 and 18.

This is the first series with Albion since 1943 when N.N.C. won 47-26, and 51-50. Morris Chalfant, captain of our team was high with 38 points in the second game.

Athletes Will Vie For Sports Trophy In New Contest

Sportsmanship and Americanism is to be the theme of the new trophy that will be awarded to the outstanding athlete of the year.

Sponsored by the Adam Hat Welfare Committee and directed by Jack Dempsey, nationally famous athlete, it is to be given not to the highest point man, or the four letter winner but the student who is the most outstanding primarily in enthusiasm, co-operation and sportsmanship.

The winner of this gigantic exquisitely designed trophy is to be elected by the Student Body in the spring of each year.

We are joining with over 400 other American Colleges and Universities, who have already accepted and will present this trophy next spring to their best all-round athlete.

"Loggers" Fall In Second Game With Crusaders

NNC varsity lost and won in a week-end basketball series with Lewiston Normal, January 10 and 11. Friday night's score was Lewiston Normal 50, NNC 47. Saturday night the Crusaders retaliated by beating the Loggers 47-41.

Friday night's game was played in the College gym with a capacity crowd on hand to witness the struggle. The Crusaders surged out in the first half to build up a lead of 18-9, but by the end of the half the Loggers had narrowed the margin to 21-19.

Lewiston came on the floor fighting in the second half and tied the score 23-23. Lewiston then kept the lead until the final whistle, winning 50-47.

Saturday night's game in Central gym was captured from a persistent hard fighting opponent. NNC took the lead by scoring the first points on foul shots, but the score was tied 11-11 in the next few minutes. The Crusaders organized and pulled away to build a half-time score of 26-22.

The preliminaries were played both nights by NNA. Friday night the Trojans beat St. Teresa 55-20. Saturday they dropped the game 37-39 to Middleton.

Half-time entertainment was presented both nights by Abe Bennett.

I have always maintained that the N.N.C. Crusaders could hold their own against any of the other Nazarene Colleges on the basketball floor, and this New Years the team proved my contention was right. Our men gave Pasadena College every opportunity to win a game. They stayed up late every night; they ate any and everything at all hours; they fouled out at the most inconvenient times, and in all gave their opponents a fair chance to win at least one game, but they just weren't good enough.

Now I want you to notice that I didn't say that the P.C. Crusaders weren't good, I merely stated that they weren't as good as the N. N. C. Crusaders.

Incidentally the Sports writer for the P. Cinian, the school paper at P.C., stated that the name Crusader was old-fashioned and outmoded, and that P.C. needed a new name for their team.

Since this last series of games we are inclined to agree with him on that score. I believe that the name Crusaders is the best possible name for a team from a Christian college and that it is so desirable that it should be reserved only for the best. N.N.C. will keep the outstanding traditional name and others may change.

You know there is one yell leader on this campus who will get the kids to yell or break an arm trying. We extend our sympathy to Abe Bennett who broke his arm at the pre-vacation game with B.J.C.

Dale Johnson of the Idaho Free Press threw out a swell suggestion to N.N.C. the other night in his column. It was the idea that we have printed programs at our games giving the names and interesting statistics of the players of both teams. We try to get good crowds out to our games but we don't do much promotion. How about it, Mr. Manager? A little half-time entertainment is usually customary at college basketball games, too. Of course this would be in charge of another group which I won't mention in this issue.

Bob Kiel, tall lanky forward on the Crusader basketball team is in the spot light this week. Bob is a sophomore and a 1945-46 letterman, from Bend, Oregon. He has been around the campus for about three years and is known for his basketball enthusiasm.

Bob was one of the fortunates who made the trip to Pasadena during the Christmas vacation. In the 2nd game when things started looking pretty bleak he nonchalantly started hitting and so saved the game. "Cool as a cucumber Kiel" they called him after that. So if you see CAACK any place just read alias Bob Kiel.

As for the school in Pasadena he says, "I think they have a good school down there in the southland, especially do they have good eats in their dining hall (meaning steaks). We stayed in the gym and really had a high old time while on the campus.

Have you noticed Bob has a fondness for eating? True to the spirit of keeping on the beam as portrayed by the whole team. Bob kept up his eating habits, and didn't allow himself to become undernourished on the trip.

He saw the last of the Rose Bowl game and reports that it was just like the ADP's and SLA's in Kurtz Park, except for a few minor details.
